REOPENING SOON--After standing vacant for more than three years, the Locke Mills Marketplace will once again open as a grocery store. The property has been purchased by Associated Grocers of Maine, which plans to operate it as a Shurfine Supermarket. The company has declined to announce an opening date, but it will be interviewing job applicants on April 23 and 24. Don Taylor, of Early Real Estate negotiated the sale, and says the store will employ 25 to 30 people. The job tally on the sign is a gibe at nearby Bethel, which in December exercised its option to buy the former GAMM II property. Taylor also had a buyer lined up for the GAMM II property, he said, a buyer who would have brought in 30 new jobs.

GAMM project gets strong voter OK

Bethel's continued management of the former GAMM II property was overwhelmingly reaffirmed by the nearly 200 voters who turned out for last Wednesday's special Town Meeting.

Following more than an hour of discussion, voters concurred with both recommendations of the Airport Industrial Park Committee: they approved the article authorizing the town to sell the building, and they defeated a second article that would have prohibited the town from accepting a Farmers Home Administration grant for the project.

But the key vote of the evening--in terms of voter sentiment--came earlier, on an amendment to the first article that would have explicitly prohibited the town from leasing the GAMM building.

The amendment was proposed by Harry Faulkner, who argued, as had a number of other speakers, that the AIPC's interpretation of the first article was a deliberate misreading of its intent.

The article had been petitioned to meeting by Clare Piawlock, one of a number of residents opposed to the town's decision to buy and manage the property.

The intend of the article, she said, had been to force the town to sell the property as soon as possible, "before we get burned any more."

But members of the AIPC, which is exploring a number of different management options for the property, also supported the article, Members claimed that the wording of the article authorized the town to sell the property, but did not force it to abandon the idea of leasing, or compel it to sell to the first buyer with sufficient cash in hand.

With both sides holding firm to their own interpretation of the article, it appeared a vote would do little to settle the dispute over the town's management of property.

Faulkner, however, argued that the petitioners deserved a clean, upor-down vote on their position. So he offered an amendment directing the town "to sell and not to lease" the property.

Once the amendment had been seconded, Faulkner said he had himself opposed the original purchase, "but we lost, fair and square," he said, and now was not the time to start limiting the town's options.

Referring to the selectmen and the AIPC, he said, "Let's not cut their legs out. Give them the opportunity to do something."

The overwhelming majority of voters present apparently agreed, and they joined with Faulkner in defeating the amendment. Only two dozen or so voters supported the amendment.

Voters then went on to approve the original article as written and to soundly defeat the related article, directing the town to reject federal money for the purchase.

Voters also approved the "Reinvest in Hometown America" resolution, which calls on Congress and the president to take the money saved in military expenses as a result of the ending of the Cold War, and to invest that money in the domestic infrastructure and human resources of the country.

Voters also passed articles extending the town's floodplain ordinance. and authorizing the town to accept loan and grant funds for completing the Lower Main Street phase of the Downtown Revitalization Project.

Androscoggin snowmaking

State approval expected soon on skiway plan

By MARK SHANAHAN

After nearly a year of review, the state Department of Environmental Protection is poised to grant Sunday River Ski Resort permission to draw water from the Androscoggin River to make snow, a DEP official confirmed Thursday.

Linda Kokemuller, a project analyst with the DEP's Land Bureau, said final approval is imminent for the resort's proposal to run a pipeline from the Androscoggin River to the skiway.

"I'm writing up the order now and the Commissioner might sign it within the next two weeks," Kokemuller said Thursday.

As a result of recent river water tests that showed still-critical levels of chlorinated hydrocarbons, such as dioxin, Kokemuller said the amount of water available to the skiway for snow-making purposes will be specified in the permit.

"I can't remember what the allowable amount is right now, but (Sunday River) will be restricted," Kokemuller said.

The ski resort's application calls for a pipeline--driven by eight, 600horse power pumps--to carry water from the Androscoggin River to the mountain.

Eighth graders again do well on state testing

SAD #44 eighth graders have once again performed strongly in the latest round of the Maine Educational Assessment.

Local eighth graders bested the state average in all six content areas of the October testing.

They also improved upon their own scores from when they took the fourth-grade version of the test in February of 1988. The greatest improvement from the earlier round of testing was in the key content areas of writing and mathematics. In writing, the local scores went from 180 (70 points below the state average) to 320 (60 points above the average. In mathematics, the local score went from 235 (15 points below average) to 320 (15 points above). This most recent success also boosts the district's three-year average score for the eighth-grade tests above the state three-year average. This marks the first time the local eighth-grade scores have broken this bar-

"I'm really pleased with the consistency of the scoring," said middle school principal Bruce Bell. "It's good to have high scores for a year or two, but it's very gratifying to have the three-year average come up."

Local fourth-grade scores for the past three years are also running ahead of the comparable state average. The local 11th grade average lags behind the state three-year average, but has been improving.

The eighth grade scores once again reveal a persistent gender gap in academic accomplishment in SAD #44, with girls outscoring boys in all areas of the test but science. Statewide, there is a similar, but far less pronounced, difference in the scores of boys and girls. Eighty-three local eighth graders took the latest test; only one student was excluded. Ten the local students taking the test had not taken the fourth-grade version in SAD #44.

Opinions

If it's spring, this must be a raise

"When contract issues are left unresolved they can lead to a negative effect upon present programs. When the morale of the staff is low, it can affect student learning."

Or so Superintendent of Schools Dewaine Craig cautioned the SAD #44 Board of Directors recently--picturing the dire consequences if the board declined to set aside a tidy $86,000 for another round of salary and benefit increases for teachers and admin-

It's difficult to know what to make of this very curious statement (threat, really) from the superintendent. It seems to allow only two interpretations, neither of which reflects very positively on the local educationist establishment.

Taken literally, the statement is a bald-faced admission that local educators (who are so quick to complain that the community fails to respect their professionalism) are in fact so unprofessional as to let contract negotiations affect their classroom performance. From pouty kids we might expect that kind of immaturity, but from profes-

But perhaps the superintendent's statement isn't meant to be taken at face value. Perhaps it's just another instance of that hoary educationist dodge--hiding behind the children, using the youngsters' welfare as a rhetorical smokescreen behind which adults pursue their own personal and institutional agendas.

But however we choose to interpret the superintendent's statement, one thing is very clear: it and the hatful of gimme behind it are a slap in the face to just about everyone else in this community.

To town employees, many of whom are going years without a pay

To town officials, who have painfully cut and cut from their own budgets in order to keep local property taxes down--then seen their hard work wiped out by never-ending school tax escalations.

But above all, to residents struggling to pay those taxes. Of course, town employees, officials and taxpayers don't have a union. They do have the SAD #44 Board of Directors, but the board, it seems, "just can't say 'no" -- at least not to additional pay hikes for teachers (who are looking for inceases above and beyond their automatic "step increases"), or to administrators (whose salaries soar even as their ranks swell and their individual responsibilities shrink).

The whole idea of automatic pay raises in a severe recession would be out of the question (as it indeed should be) were it not for two guilt trips assiduously nourished by the educationists: That teachers are basically underpaid and that paying higher teacher salaries would buy better education for the children.

Both are self-serving nonsense.

We've said it before. Others have said it before. But we'll say it again: teachers are no longer underpaid. They are, in fact, paid yery well for the nine months of the year, minus vacations, they are expected to show up at school.

. Maine teachers make much of the fact that the state ranks 35th nationally in teacher salaries. They don't mention, however, that the state also ranks 3rd nationally in educational spending per $1,000 of personal income, according to U.S. Census Bureau data. In other words, only in two states do residents pay more of their personal income to the schools.

And as to the simpleminded assumption that higher salaries buy better teaching, common sense tells us otherwise, and so does much of the academic research into the subject. In the May 1989 issue of "Educational Researcher" (the official journal of the American Educational Research Association) Eric A. Hanushek published a study reviewing two decades of research into educational production functions. Hanushek found that the 187 studies under review "produced startling consistent results: Variations in school expenditures are not systematically related to variations in student

That is: pumping more tax money into the system (and the bulk of that money goes to teacher salary and benefit packages) does little if anything to improve student performance.

Hanushek concludes: "School reform discussions that begin with the premise that constraints on expenditures are the most serious roadblock to improved student performance are, at best, misguided. Expenditure increases, if undertaken within the current institutional structure, are likely to be dissipated on reduced class sizes or indiscriminate raises in teacher salaries, with the result the growth in costs will almost surely exceed growth in student per-

What then does work? What variables would be on the table at contract time if we were really interested in improving the lives of the children, and ultimately the well-being of the entire community?

There's certainly no shortage of ideas on the subject. And just about all of them make more sense than simply throwing more money at teachers and administrators.

Hanushek, for example, argues for teacher performance incentives. Many others have made the obvious case for a longer school

But ideas like pay-for-performance and the longer school year are mortal taboos to the entrenched educationist establishment.

Mention them at your peril, but certainly don't hold your breath waiting for the Telstar Educators Association to bring either to the bargaining table. Or for the SAD #44 Board of Directors to suddenly find the temerity to demand them.

Especially when it's so much easier to just keep pouring tax dollars down the rathole of unwarranted salary increases-increases that have nothing to do with better education, and everything to do with the educationists' truly stunning sense of entitlement.

JOBS, NOT A QUICK PROFIT--Dan Reich, chairman of Bethel's Airport Industrial Park Committee, reviews the committee's goals for the former GAMM II property at last week's special Town Meeting. Moderator Bill Cousins looks on. "The town of Bethel is not interested in being landlords," Reich said. "The issue is jobs. The issue is economic development." Nearly 200 voters turned out for last week's meeting, and they voted overwhelmingly to keep the town's options for the property open. Reich told the meeting that the committee had already received one offer for a lease-purchase agreement on the prop-

1. We are in a recessionary buyer's market. When the buyer has the advantage, it seems rather foolhardy to set criteria on a possible sale. I feel that if someone comes along with the money to buy--we should sell. What do we care if he wants to use the building for storage or whether he is part of a group of speculators wanting to take a risk that the value will increase? We should sell. If later on another buyer or business comes along that can A TOUGH PLACE TO WORK add jobs locally, what's the problem with using one of our other lots at the industrial park.

WOODSTOCK DENIES LOWEST BIDDER

To the Editor:

I have had several taxpayers approach me and ask me why I did not get the bid concerning the septic system at the Maine Conservation School, since I was the lowest bidder by $9,000. Here are my comments, since I do not understand ei-

First--My original comment about the job being done in a week--that was not an iron clad proposal. My comment was that I would like to get the job done in as much time (without considering unforeseen problems such as equipment break downs, weather conditions, hitting ledge). My hired man and I work 60 plus hours each a week when weather permits. We go to a job and concentrate on that particular job until it is done to specifications. That keeps the cost down on moving equipment.

Second--Our bid was 25 percent lower than the engineers estimate. How could the engineers estimate on the prices of local materials? I had planned on using local materials (sand) and was getting more than a fair price for it. Just for the record-I was also getting a deal from my septic material supplier. These two factors alone helped me submit a much

Third--As a safety factor, I would agree that kids around a job do restaurants please take note. If safety is a concern I would recyclables to the bins--dump the want the job done as soon as posbags of material in proper bins and put the bag in the cardboard bin--or engineer at the job site, the job has to be done to specifications and then inspected. What could go wrong? What is there to "feel uncomfortable" about?

Fourth--I was led to believe that the contractors had to be bonded for tion on recycling. I realize it may be this job. Mr. Sessions and I both agreed to be bonded. Nowhere in the contract does it state that the contractor has to be bonded.

Fifth--As for "reference received both solicited and unsolicited," my response: I have worked with numerous individuals businesses, as well as doing public

Two facts bacame obvious at the work for the community (water works, road work) etc. I have worked with many contractors and town sentic inspectors as well as a private institution and believe my references are well intact and available to any interested party.

I have been in this business for 20 years. I have been one of Superior Concrete's of Lewiston highest contractors for several years. I do the job to the plan specifications and do t for a fair price. I try to use local business people and local material to keep the cost down. I feel regret that the true lowest bidder was not awarded the job to help save the taxpayers of Maine $9,000 in these hard economic times.

Jack Cross Bethel

To the Editor:

Every now and then you will read in the paper or hear someone say that Bethel is a nice place to live, work and play.

It is a nice place to live but, it stops there.

As far as it is a nice place to work, it isn't, and I will give you some examples of that. I knew a man, he is gone now, that was born in Bethel 83 years ago and he worked for a lumber "baron," a lot of days he would work 12-14. hours and was payed for nine hours (if you wanted to call it pay). I knew another man that worked in Bethel a sawmill where it was 30-35 degrees below. When it came noon time he had to stay in the mill and eat his lunch, or rather try to eat it. He would take a sandwich out of his "lard pail" and it would be frozen solid. He had to take a hammer and break it up in bite size pieces in order to eat it. A nice place to work and no coffee breaks. We worked on the field house (1940) and all the digging was done with a pick and shovel (Georgia chain-gang style).

Most of the steel was put in place by "bull strength and ignorance." The glass was installed on the roof in January while the wind was blowing a "living judgment."

If you got hurt or killed it was your own tough luck. We were paid 35 cents a hour and no coffee breaks. Another good place to work.

We worked in the woods cutting four-foot wood with a bucksaw and a ax and was paid 75 cents a cord. We had a black tea break. A good place to work?

I worked in a mill where it was 40 degrees below and if you wanted to get warm you had to go outdoors in order to do so. Each machine had a start-stop button and we would push the start button and all the motor would do is "hum." In order to get the saws turning we had to grab the belts and pull on them. A good way to lose an arm. A good place to work and no cottee breaks. I know a man that grew up in

Bethel (now living in Bryant Pond) that worked 10 hours a day and was paid $1. Another good place to work and no coffee breaks. How about this one. I know a woman that was born in Bethel. She told me that when she was a girl, she done housework for a "well to do" family in town and they paid her 25 cents a week plus a used tea bag. Another good place to work. I could go on and on about these good places to work, but I know that most of the "late comers" wouldn't believe it so it would be a waste of time writing. Today if you asked a person to do that kind of work, under those conditions, they would have you sent to Thomaston and put in solitary confinement. On the other hand somethings haven't changed all that much in the past 50-60 years as far as labor goes. Fred McMillin

The Bethel planning board postooned action last week on the town's after-the-fact site plan application for renovations done at the town office four years ago. The board put off voting on the application because it did not specify parking for Cole Block em-

Skidder's Deli and the Wood 'N Glass Gallery. Skidder's owner Audrey Sundman and gallery owner Maureen Ginther

The house will be remodeled to include the deli's kitchen and dining room, with seating for nine to 12 customers. About 200 square feet of the house will be renovated as a retail showroom for the gallery.

With the arrival of spring the Consumer Division of the Maine Attorney General's office receives this question quite frequently. The answer is "no, the homeowner does not have to pay." In fact, it is a Class D crime for a door-to-door paver to work on a driveway before three days have passed after the contract is signed. This three-day waiting period allows the homeowner to decide whether they really want the work done and to check out the paver's references. In the fall and winter we receive similar questions concerning roofers and chimney repair companies. These door-to-door home repair companies know the 3-day waiting period law but often ignore it. The success of their operations depends on them doing the work immediately and leaving town before any complaints can be lodged. In general, we strongly recommend that you contract for such home repair work only with local businesses. The Attorney General's Consumer Division receives over 10,000 questions a year. If you have a question or complaint write to: What Are My Rights?, State House Station #6, Augusta, Maine, 04333.

is going to make an arbitrary cut from the budget. I'd rather have the district voters do it than we do it." Merton Brown said the proposed salary and benefit increase caused him the most concern.

The thing that I find the most disturbing is that at the last meeting we were given a memo from the superintendent that said 'I with the support of the district administrators recommend the following:' and the first item on there (to be put back in the budget) is their own salaries, which are listed above things like field trips. It's above items like a librarian for the high school. It's above out-of-district placement costs. I think that is a sad statement.

But discussion of the proposed salary and benefit increases was kept to a minimum. Negotiations regarding salaries and benefits are now almost always held in executive session, except for the final vote formalizing the decision reached in the will be lifted." secret session.

Ultimately, no further cuts to any part of the budget were proposed. Eleven of the 16 directors at Monday's meeting voted in favor of the proposed budget.

Voting against the proposal were: Bethel directors Merton Brown, Jane Rolfe, Edleen Winslow and Cheryl Eliot and Greenwood director Ray Harrington.

"To be sure, there is nothing more joyous than the exhilaration of a young winner," acknowledges Dick Taylor, former Olympian and Olympic coach. "But many a mar-velous young athlete is wasted," cautions the Gould Academy crosscountry coach, "because of indiscriminant challenges to his or her obvious and fascinating talents."

Taylor will explore these issues at a talk and forum for parents at the Bethel campus on Saturday, April 25 from 3 to 5 p.m. The program will also offer participants the option to discuss their experiences as parents of athletes.

Taylor sees the normal desires for recognition and proof of self worth causing coaches, parents, and young athletes to charge into sports with too much enthusiasm and not enough knowledge of the preparation required to achieve what Taylor calls "durable success." Specifically, he cites evidence that too frequent and too intense training and competition can be dangerously stressful to early teenagers, and even injurious over many years hence.

The school calendar, with its three sports seasons every year, is at fault for much of the loss of proper physiological growth, says Taylor. "Prepped unrelentingly for speed and power, the young athlete too seldom receives the time needed for basic aerobic endurance, the first crucial step in the training preparation curve. So often a youngster sparkles as a junior but then cannot reach higher levels in his years of maturity and greatest potential."

Questions to be addressed are: How are young athletes different from older athletes? How can sports and training best support a young-ster's development? Where are school sports productive and where are they potentially damaging? What should parents get out of youth sports? Taylor is especially interested by this last question, and hopes parents will have a chance to explore the question of what their own stake in sports is.

The program is fully open to the public, and there is no registration fee. Further information can be obtained by calling 824-2196.

Monitoring by Bethel conservation group finds Sunday River effluent very clean

By WALTER HATCH

The quality of Sunday River's treated water discharging into the Androscoggin River gets good marks in a recent review by the Bethel Conservation Commission. The review was part of an ongoing program to foster good water quality in the Androscoggin, one of Bethel's important natural resources.

Monthly reports on discharge water quality were compared with DEP permit requirements, for the months of October '91 (when discharges started for the current season") through February '92.

Flow: Monthly average flow ranged from 35 to 101 thousand gallons per day, well below the maximum permitted value of 240. Daily maximum flows ranged up to 154 thousand gallons per day, compared with 300 permitted.

Biological Oxygen Demand (BOD): Monthly averages ranged from 12 to 20 mg/l, well below the maximum permitted value of 30. Daily maximums ranged up to 29, compared with 50 permitted.

Total Suspended Solids (TSS): Monthly averages ranged from 10 to 19 mg/l, well below the maximum permitted value of pH: Except for October (see below), daily measurements ranged from 7.1 to 7.9, meeting the permitted values of 6.0 minimum, 8.5 maximum. For October, pH values for the seven days when discharge occurred exceeded 8.5, ranging from 8.8 to 10.1. This was attributed to an algae "bloom" in the lagoons in earlier, warmer months.

Bacteria (E Coli.): Daily values ranged from 0 to 4 units per 100 ml, far below the permitted daily maximum of 949.

Bypassing: None. (The plant design does not allow bypassing.) · It is not surprising that the DEP was complimentary of the plant's operation in comments from its recent inspection on 1/29/92: "I observed no significant problem with the facility at the time of the visit. Effluent was good and appeared well within limits. Your maintenance program appears top notch, especially on the preventative side.

The Conservation Commission plans to continue monitoring both the Sunday River and Town of quality.

GOULD ACADEMY JUMPING COACHES Paul McGuire, left, and John Wight, right, received a special appreciation award from this year's varsity letter winners at the winter sports banquet last week. The coaches were given a pair of skis from the pre-fiberglass days. McGuire and Wight are an anomaly among jumping coaches in that they are still jumping several decades after their first jumps. Team members are Dan Boyle, second from left, Nathan Wight and Alex Chapman, who achieved Gould's best-ever finish in the New England Prep School Championships this year--one point out of first place.

Task Force notes:

The Bethel Area Task Force will meet on Sunday, April 26 at 7 p.m. at the Bingham House. Anyone who has been involved in the Task Force or the Community Conference is urged to attend. Interested community members and new participants are welcome.

The Task Force was formed in June of 1991 in response to NTL's decision to leave Bethel and as a successor to the NTL/Bethel Liaison Committee. Since then the group has been extremely active and is proud of its accomplishments to Three strands have been consistent in its emphases: 1)positive communication with NTL in a collaborative effort to assure the organization's continuation in Bethel; 2) keeping the community a center for arts and education, regardless of NTL's future here; 3) improving the community's economic base. The three committees formed around these concerns have been busy, as has a newer ad hoc committee formed to make recommendations to NTL regarding its property in Bethel.

1)NTL has repeatedly expressed appreciation for the ongoing information sharing that has been established and credits the Task Force with having a strong impact on its planning for its Bethel operations. NTL will offer 24 labs, over a 12week period, in the 1992 season. 2) The Task Force has been immensely pleased with Community Conference II, including focus groups, the all-day conference on Nov. 15, and exciting follow-up work. Since the November conference, nine community action groups have involved community members in important planning and have brought improvements to the community. Perhaps most visible has been the Just Imagine Coffee House, operating weekly Feb. 1 through May 1 and with plans for the future. A Conference follow-up evening was held on March 18, solidifying participants' commitment to working hard for their community and laying groundwork for yet another conference next year.

3) The Economic Development action group formed at the Conference is pleased to see the reemergence of the Bethel Area Development Corporation and has gratefully lent its support to the functions of this group.

Our work is certainly not finished. At our upcoming meeting the Task Force will define its roll for the future. We welcome your help: Bingham House, 7 p.m. on Sunday, April 26.

Nine ladies met at the home of Lucille Largesse Wednesday. One brought slippers to show how they are knit, another brought a basket trimmed with fabric, ribbon and flowers, several brought recipes for exchanging. The next meeting is scheduled at the home of Pauline Lavallee on Wednesday evening, April 15 at 7 p.m. There will be a Ray Bernier came out of his winter retirement and went back to work as a stone mason.

Roland and I went to Berlin for a Spring Fling and among our purchases was a croquet set in spite of the fact there's no ground showing. We saw Upton people as seems to be the norm and also had a chat with friends Ernest and Alberta Angevine and wish them fare-thee-well for their upcoming trip across country. Traveling is especially rough this spring as the weather has been unkind to roads.

The Historical Society has very active members, officers and committees. For instance, this month the finance committee is planning new ways to make money. The building committee had to do some work in the basement after the recent rains. The research committee gives a report on some historic topic each month. Various members work hard planning programs. Louise and Elena Noyes coordinate refreshments served after each meeting. The Board of Trustees, headed by chairperson Kathleen Bean, tries to solve many problems encountered by the Society. The Society is very grateful for everyone's efforts and hard work. Francis Brooks has given another small tin to the museum. Kathleen Bean and Mary Billings have been working on things for the finance committee.

Pharmacy & Your Health

David Preble, Preb's Pharmacy Pain Relievers: Non-Narcotic and Narcotic

Mild to moderate pain such as occasional headache frequently is relieved through the use of one of several excellent nonprescription medicines. Such products usually contain aspirin, acetaminophen, or ibuprofen. Prescription pain relievers are classified as narcotic or non-narcotic. Sometimes narcotic and non-narcotic pain relievers are given together or they are combined in the same tablet or Non-narcotic pain relievers requiring a prescription include pentazocine, propoxyphene, and the large group of nonsteroidal antiinflammatory agents which include tolmetin, mefenamic acid, sulindac, indomethacin, piroxicam, and naproxen. Medicines in the last group primarily are used for relief of pain associated with arthritis. They work by inhibiting the production of substances called prostaglandins.

Narcotic pain reliever medicines include morphine, codeine, hydromorphone, and meperidine. Many narcotics are derived from the opium plant. These powerful medicines relieve pain by acting on the brain and altering the way pain is perceived. In many instances, severe, chronic pain will not respond to any type of pain reliever other than a narcotic. Other medicines which may be given with non-narcotics and narcotics to help relieve pain include antidepressants, anticonvulsants, corticosteroids, and amphetamines.

At their meeting Monday, Woodstock selectmen officially awarded the job of installing the new septic system at the Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond to an excavation company from Harrison.

Wednesday, April 15 1992

McWin Incorporated, whose $40,845 bid was roughly $10,000 more than the lowest bid submitted, was awarded the job after the Maine Department of Environmental Protection last week found in favor of the selectmen and ruled that the lowest quoted price was unacceptable. That bid was submitted by Jack Cross of Bethel.

Maine Handicapped Skiing fundraiser sets new record

A record number of physically disabled children and adults participated in Maine Handicapped Skiing's 10th season while MHS's annual Ski-A-Thon set a new fundraising record.

MHS's 10th season climaxed with its annual Ski-A-Thon raising $175,000. On Saturday, March 21, 110 five person teams from around New England combined their skiing and fundraising abilities in support of this unique adaptive ski

Everyone put forth an outstanding effort, smiled Paula Wheeler, MHS executive director, "I can't begin to thank the participants and their sponsors enough. Without their support MHS would not be able to provide this service to the physically disabled, free of charge."

The MHS Volunteers Ski-A-Thon team, with a grand total of $14,600, won a five day ski vacation in Colorado courtesy of American Airlines. Team members Scott Braman, Chris Cotnoir, Brad Bowen, Marian Keene and Dennis Doyon have participated together in four Ski-A-Thons. Union Oil, the 1989 winning team, was the second highest pledge raising team with $11,000.

The 550 participants enjoyed a beautiful day of skiing, thanks to Sunday River's support of MHS, as well as a chicken barbecue, an awards ceremony and dancing to Cornerstone, sponsored by Surgi-Tech, Inc. an orthopedic equipment supplier in Waltham, Mass.

Thanks to the computerized fundraising assistance of Northern Data Systems individuals and team totals are tallied throughout the day and awards are presented at the close of the event. All of the prizes are donated allowing the funds raised to go directly to providing services for the physically disabled.

Individual and team prizes were awarded. Thirty-three individuals raised $1,000 or more, establishing another Ski-A-Thon record. Each inskiing accessory donated by ski shops and businesses around New England. Charles Stevens, president of Northern Data Systems lead the individual pledge raisers with $9,070. He was presented with a pair of Rossignol Skis and Marker bindings which he immediately auctioned off adding $390 to his pledge raising total.

Teams raising over $1,000 were awarded donated prizes through a lottery drawing. Twelve teams qualified for the $3,000 category. The Down East Ski Club received a five day lift and lodging package from Killington. The Three Tracking Flamingos won a five night/three day lift and lodging package to Chalets Village, Mont-Sainte-Anne, Quebec.

Two winning teams in the $2,000+ category received five day lift and lodging packages at Sunday River. Of the 19 teams eligible New England Telephone and the Orthopedic Bombers were chosen.

The $1,000 category had 29 eligible teams. The five teams drawn received two day lift and lodging packages at Sunday River. HAND-ICAP.XYThese prizes were awarded to Bethel Savings Bank #1, PMS Express, Service Master, Northern Data Systems #1 and Northern Data Systems Megabytes.

Other 10th season records include: 250 physically disabled children and adults participating in the rehabilitative winter recreation, free of charge; 280 volunteers took part of ski instructors, snowmobile drivers and office assistants and Sam Waheed, a paraplegic from Minneapolis, Minn., traveled to Sunday River for a week of monoski instruction with MHS.

Scheduling for the 1992-93 ski season will begin in October for both students and volunteers. Interested persons are urged to contact the MHS Ski Center at Sunday River Ski Resort, RR #2, Box 1971, Bethel or by calling 824-2440.

THOUGHTS FROM THE

Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your dai-

"...the whole multitude of the disciples began to praise God joyfully with a loud voice for all the great things they had seen..." (Luke 19:37b)

Last Sunday was Palm/Passion Sunday--a time when we remembered palms being waved and spread for Jesus, remembering when the people shouted Hosanna, praising Jesus. Last Sunday was also a time when some of us received palms. Palms that, maybe, were placed where we can see them throughout this week and throughout the year. Palms placed, perhaps, on a picture of "The Last Supper."

And this week, especially on Maundy Thursday, some of us will gather in homes and in churches to partake of Holy Communion/The Lord's Table/Eucharist. Some will have a tenebrae service. Some will gather around tables symbolic of how Jesus gathered with the disciples. And, the "gifts of God," the bread and the cup will be broken and poured. The living bread and the saving cup will be shared ... the great and wonderful gifts given to us through Jesus. And, for some, as we accept this sacrament, our thoughts go to how Jesus was betrayed--and, the coming of Good Friday.

Good Friday--now a holy day, A day when Jesus died for us and our sins. That is, even after being rejected by some. That is, after what would seem grueling walk. That is, still with a remarkable love for us! This Good Friday some of us will spend silent time--reading the gospels/praying...some will gather to walk behind a cross. Some will go to a church.

And then comes Sunday-Easter, ERNEST L. HOLT Easter after Good Friday. Easter-when Allelulias are sung. Easterwhen people gather early recogniz-ing the significance of a Sunrise Service. Easter--much more than a special day: A day celebrating Christ's resurrection, the hope and promise of "new life." Easter--when people gather and worship celebrating with the words "Christ is Risen." Christ is Risen indeed! Rejoice!

... Peter got up and ran to the tomb; stooping and looking in, he saw the linen cloths by themselves; then he went home, amazed at what had happened...(Luke 24:12)
